

Championing our CarMax Values. Protects and preserves our CarMax Culture.

Answer:

After joining CarMax in June 2022, I was asked to participate in a fleet safety program, which included a four-day training session in Tampa, Florida. As a member of the fleet team, I was eager to contribute to our safety culture and immediately shared the key safety tips I learned with the lead and senior fleet drivers at my store. I emphasized practices such as maintaining the upper deck at eight feet or higher and ensuring the lower extension and ramps were tucked in when empty to increase trailer visibility and reduce the risk of accidents.

By taking the time to explain the reasoning behind these practices, I helped my team understand their importance and encouraged their implementation. This proactive approach not only reinforced a culture of safety but also demonstrated my commitment to CarMax's values:

- Put People First: I prioritized the safety and well-being of my team and the public by sharing and implementing critical safety practices.
- Win Together: I collaborated with my team to ensure everyone understood and I encouraged them to adopt these practices, fostering a shared commitment to safety.
- Go for Greatness: I went beyond the training by actively applying what I learned and striving to improve our safety standards.
- Do the Right Thing: I emphasized the importance of following safety protocols, even when it required extra effort, because it was the right thing to do for our team and customers.

This experience highlighted how living CarMax's values can create a safer, more efficient, and more collaborative work environment.

Identifies teachable moments to grow and develop others by serving as the go-to person and delivering timely feedback. Serves as the daily coach by conducting observations, delivering timely feedback, and recognizing performance trends.

Answer:

During February 2025, I assisted a team member with learning the CarMax Driver App and the MaxOffer procedure. He was new to the process and needed guidance to confidently complete these tasks independently.

My responsibility was to train him on the end-to-end MaxOffer process, ensuring he understood each step thoroughly and could perform the tasks confidently and accurately. I also aimed to provide him with the tools and support needed to succeed. I met with him at my store and visited several MaxOffer pickup locations together. During the training, I walked him through each step of the process, including:

- Installing and navigating the CarMax Driver App.
- Searching for and prioritizing past-due vehicles.
- Creating shipments, verifying them, and generating Bills of Lading (BOL).
- Inputting BOL numbers into My20 and marking shipments as completed.
- Properly handling and parking MaxOffer vehicles at Store 7110.

To reinforce the training, I created a step-by-step checklist for him to reference until he memorized the procedure. I also provided real-time feedback during the training, answering his questions and offering tips to improve efficiency. The training was a success. He quickly gained confidence and was able to complete MaxOffers independently. He expressed appreciation for the clear guidance and checklist, which helped him feel prepared and supported. This experience enhanced both his skills and mine, as I often find that sharing knowledge made me more efficient.

In addition to this example, I have consistently demonstrated recurrence behavior in identifying teachable moments, delivering timely feedback, and developing others. For instance:

- In September 2022, I identified safety concerns with the wheel lifter tie-down and safety chain procedures. I researched industry best practices, consulted with colleagues, and shared detailed recommendations with my lead driver to improve safety.
- In November 2022, I recognized inefficiencies in the eight-point wheel strapping method and proposed a safer load tie-down procedure, supported by research and expert references.

- In November 2023, I collaborated on developing a winch operation training guide to address safety risks, demonstrating my commitment to sharing knowledge and improving team performance.
- In August 2024, I identified structural issues with the home delivery truck and implemented a procedure to prevent further damage, sharing this knowledge with my team to ensure safe operations.
- In February 2025, I addressed incorrect usage of the QuixSpinz Ratchet System by demonstrating proper procedures to senior fleet drivers and my logistics manager, emphasizing the importance of safety and correct practices.

These examples highlight my ongoing commitment to identifying opportunities for growth, delivering timely feedback, and developing others to achieve shared goals.

Identifies problems and trends, takes the time to pause and assess, effectively prioritizes and offers sound recommendations.

Answer:

During my time on the fleet team, I identified a significant safety concern involving the condition and operation of the rollback winches. My experience with winch operations and observations of damaged cables revealed an unsafe procedure in use, posing a risk to both the team and the public.

I took the time to pause and assess the issue thoroughly. I documented the unsafe conditions with photos and gathered evidence to understand the scope of the problem. Recognizing the urgency of the situation, I prioritized addressing the issue immediately and broke it down into manageable, bite-sized steps to address both the immediate issue and long-term prevention:

1. Immediate Action: I recommended taking the winches out of service until they could be repaired.
2. Training Program: I proposed creating a winch operation training program to educate team members on proper usage.
3. Follow-Up and Sustainment: I suggested regular inspections of the winch for signs of improper use to ensure the winches remained in safe working condition.

I presented these steps to my lead driver in a clear, organized manner, emphasizing the importance of each action and how they would collectively resolve the issue. I explained how the training program would improve safety and operational standards while the follow-up inspections would sustain these improvements over time.

As a result of my recommendations, the winch cables were repaired, and steps were taken to address the safety issues, including the development of a training program. This proactive approach not only resolved the immediate safety concern but also created a sustainable system to prevent future issues.

By breaking the problem into bite-sized solutions and organizing a plan for follow-up and sustainment, I demonstrated my ability to identify problems, assess risks, prioritize effectively, and offer sound recommendations to improve operations and safety.

Seeking partners and collaborates appropriately with others to achieve team goals.

Answer:

After transitioning to a home delivery driver role, I was tasked with picking up MaxOffer vehicles from Brickell Mazda. This was a challenging account due to unclear procedures and communication gaps. My first attempt took half a day and involved multiple setbacks, but I used this as an opportunity to learn and improve the process.

To address the challenges, I sought out partners at Brickell Mazda, connecting with the manager, Chris Chávez, and other employees involved in the release of MaxOffer vehicles to understand their procedures and build relationships.

Over a short time, I gathered contact information, learned how to access vehicle keys, and arranged for after-hours pickups. I also established a system to secure vehicle releases without involving the manager for every pickup.

Once I had streamlined the process, I collaborated with my CarMax team by explaining the system I developed to other team members. I provided them with the tools and knowledge to handle the Brickell Mazda account efficiently, ensuring everyone could benefit from the improvements.

By seeking partners at Brickell Mazda and collaborating with my CarMax team, I transformed a complicated account into one of the most manageable. My efforts not only improved efficiency for myself but also empowered other members of my team to handle the account more effectively. This experience demonstrated the value of persistence, relationship-building, and collaboration in achieving team goals.

While I have no formal authority to delegate work or hold others accountable, I have consistently stayed connected to the daily business and contributed to team success by fostering collaboration and sharing knowledge. For example, in this situation, I took the initiative to share with my team members the process I had created and explained how to execute it effectively. By providing clear guidance, I encouraged them to achieve better results by following the system. This approach demonstrates my intention to influence and drive outcomes even without formal authority.

Builds strong partnerships, speaks effectively and surfaces compelling ideas to business partners and the team.

Answer:

In September 2024, shortly after joining the home delivery team, I began picking up MaxOffer vehicles from Miami Lakes Auto Mall. Initially, the process was challenging due to:

- A high volume of MaxOffer vehicles.
- Vehicles being stored across three different locations, including two external lots.
- Limited availability of Richard (the manager) and Luis (the assisting porter), who were often too busy to assist with locating vehicles or signing release forms.
- Frequent interruptions required to secure releases, which disrupted both my workflow and the dealership's operations.

Recognizing the inefficiencies, I took the initiative to build strong partnerships with Richard and Luis. I approached the situation with respect for their time and a collaborative mindset, aiming to create a solution that would benefit both CarMax and the dealership. Here's how I addressed the challenges:

1. Building Strong Partnerships:

- I took the time to understand the dealership's procedures and established trust with Richard and Luis by demonstrating reliability and professionalism.
- By showing respect for their busy schedules and consistently following through on commitments, I fostered a positive working relationship.

2. Speaking Effectively:

- To streamline communication, I began sending Luis screenshots of the vehicles scheduled for pickup the afternoon before or early on the morning of pickup day. This proactive approach ensured that Luis had all the necessary information in advance, reducing the need for back-and-forth communication.
- I also communicated my needs clearly, requesting enough vehicles for one, two, or three days at a time, depending on the MaxOffer volume and my schedule.

3. Surfacing Compelling Ideas:

- I proposed and implemented a new system to improve efficiency:
 - Luis would leave the keys and paperwork in Richard's office, eliminating the need for frequent interruptions.

- I learned to identify vehicle locations using the key code on the tag, allowing me to locate vehicles independently.
- This system enabled me to pick up vehicles after hours, further minimizing disruptions for the dealership staff.
- These changes not only saved time but also demonstrated my ability to identify pain points and propose innovative solutions.

4. Impact on the Team:

- By turning a challenging situation into a manageable one, I set an example for my team on how to approach complex problems with collaboration and creativity.
- The streamlined process reduced frustration for both CarMax drivers and dealership staff, improving overall efficiency and strengthening the partnership between CarMax and Miami Lakes Auto Mall.

Stands out among peers as a leader by offering encouragement and motivating the team to embrace change to achieve goals.

Since my reassignment to the home delivery (HD) team in August 2024, I have frequently supported the heavy fleet team by stepping in to help complete their loads.

Whether it's due to a lack of space on their trucks, altered vehicles that are unsafe for their trailers, or the need to expedite a vehicle for a salesperson, I have become the go-to driver for these critical situations.

My willingness to support the heavy fleet has not only strengthened our team's efficiency but also demonstrated my commitment to encouraging collaboration and motivating the team to achieve shared goals.

1. Standing Out as a Leader:

- By consistently volunteering to assist the heavy fleet, I have positioned myself as a reliable and proactive team member. My actions are meant to set an example for others, showing that stepping up to help colleagues benefits the entire team and contributes to our collective success.

2. Offering Encouragement:

- When heavy fleet drivers face challenges, such as transporting altered vehicles or managing tight schedules, I offer reassurance and practical support. For example, when a senior driver reached out for help expediting a vehicle for a salesperson, I immediately stepped in, ensuring the sale could be completed. My positive attitude and willingness to help are meant to encourage others to adopt a similar collaborative mindset.

3. Motivating the Team to Embrace Change:

- My actions are meant to help foster a culture of teamwork and adaptability. By demonstrating the value of cross-team support, I intend to motivate both the HD and heavy fleet teams to work together more effectively. This mindset not only improved operational efficiency but also strengthened relationships between the teams.

4. Going Above and Beyond:

- Recently, there was an occasion where a heavy fleet driver was scheduled to head to Orlando the next day, but the vehicles were not ready. Recognizing the urgency, I stayed after hours and worked closely with the CarMax inventory department to get the vehicles released and loaded onto the truck. This ensured the driver could depart on time and meet the delivery deadline. My proactive approach not only saved time but also reinforced the importance of teamwork and adaptability in achieving our goals.

5. Impact on the Team:

- My support has had a tangible impact on the team's performance. For instance, by assisting with expedited vehicle deliveries, I've helped salespeople close deals faster, directly contributing to the store's success. Additionally, my collaborative approach is meant to build trust and camaraderie within the team, setting an example that persuades others to offer help when needed.
